Water Study

- INTERA hired to conduct the study
- Installation of real-time ground-water level monitoring devices
- Aims to understand the current status of water resources
- Helps ensure sustainable growth and development.
- Focuses on planning instead of regulating water use

Study Volunteers Needed

- Install sensors to wells across Morgan County to create real-time data network
- Monitoring system uses next-generation acoustic sensor technology to measure water levels
- Sensor attaches to the top of the well cap and does not interfere with the function of the well
